Now I'm Home

Gone too soon is what is felt in the hearts of many of you left here on earth

I know my time of 38 years was short but sweet and I have completed my purpose with so much worth

I did my job by leaving memories of love and joy in my sweet girls' hearts, my loving mother and grandmother

Took care of my baby sister in my special way as her awesome big brother

Being the oldest son I stood as the example with a special bond with both of my wonderful brothers

Touched the hearts of many with my humor and handsome smile as I cared for so many others

Even though I had this special attachment to wearing a link to my faith in God through Rosary beads

I loved Jesus Christ as a Christian which was taught to me by my loving parents and you did your job indeed

They say peanuts are a sign of blessed times and that was exactly who I was and what I stood for

So my love that has been planted in all of your hearts will always be there for you to continue to enjoy and adore

From the Heart and Soul of Quiettalker

His Story

Gregory Dale Menefee was born in Houston, Texas on November 14, 1978. He accepted Christ as a young child at New Mount Zion under the leadership of the late Reverend Sampson. Gregory was affectionately known to his family as Peanut. His late aunt Annette gave him his nickname, because he was so small when he was born.

Gregory attended Fort Bend Stephen F. Austin High School, and later went on to Everest Institute and graduated from their electrician program.

Gregory enjoyed his life. He loved music, especially by Tupac (his favorite song was "Dear Mama"), DJ Screw, and Z-Ro. He loved watching cooking shows, and would watch them with his sister Leomi while they were on the phone. He always looked forward to his sibling dates, which involved going to sporting events, hanging out, or doing whatever as long as they did it together.

He loved his mama. He was very affectionate and caring towards her. He would rub her feet, and brag about how great of a cook she was to any and everybody. He let it be known that nobody could cook better than his mama. His lady friends would call him a "mama's boy."

Greg would always say that "no one is perfect," and "everybody has done something," and he was very accepting of others. He did not discriminate. Gregory never met a stranger, he was able to talk with anyone. He had a way of making everyone laugh.

Gregory has met his grandparents in heaven: Lena Bell Smith, Ernest Carter, Andrew Dawson, Sr., and Rosie Dawson.

He leaves to cherish his memory, his grandmother: Carrie Carter, his parents: Benefrida Smith, Andrew Dawson, Audrey Dale Carter, Kim Smith, his siblings: Benjamin Menefee, Leomi Lott (Christopher), Bryant Smith, Lashell Dawson, Jerelle Dawson, his godson: Courtland Neal, and a host of aunts, uncles, cousins and good friends.
